Profile: International

Experience and Expertise

Many of Tom's cases have an international dimension. Sometimes this is because disputed assets are located in other jurisdictions. In other instances it is because the parties come from outside England and Wales. Frequently, both assets and parties are based in other parts of the world and, as a result, disputes become complicated by jurisdictional and other cross-border issues.

Tom's cases often involve an element of fraud and frequently require applications for emergency injunctive relief such as the obtaining of freezing and disclosure orders.

For detailed examples of cases, please click on the different practice areas listed in the column to the left of this screen.

Tom accepts instructions to advise and appear before courts and arbitral tribunals in a number of different jurisdictions.
