Fiona Fitzgerald is responsible for the strategic direction of Radcliffe Chambers and leads a motivated team of staff, who share her commitment to providing an outstanding service to clients.

She works closely with our senior clerks and other senior managers to oversee the development of our people, practices, brand and client relationships, and ensure we meet the high standards of service, compliance and risk management that our clients expect.

You can contact Fiona if you have any questions about Radcliffe Chambers, our areas of expertise, or how to join us, or if you would like to provide feedback on our services.

Fiona joined Radcliffe Chambers as chief executive in 2014. She was previously an equity partner at a top 200 law firm, and has served as chair of the Association of Women Solicitors. She is a member of the executive committee of the Legal Practice Management Association and the Bar Council Legal Services Committee.
